“ Sherrie was a wonderful colleague at UNK. She was an extremely popular teacher and it seems like every time I walked by her office, her door was open and she was helping a students learn about accounting. I know that she had a tremendous positive impact on her students and in many cases she did it the old fashioned way, by working with them one-on-one until they understood the concept or problem. She had a great impact on her students and colleagues and was loved by all.
