Amy Lyn Johnson was born on August 25, 1979 in Kearney to Kenneth L. and Barbara L. (Laue) Johnson. She grew up in Kearney and graduated from Kearney High School in 1997. Following high school, she worked various jobs until her health would no longer allow her to work. Amy moved out of state for a short time before returning to Kearney in January of 2016.

Amy loved making jewelry and spent many hours making bracelets and necklaces from beads. She also enjoyed fishing and drag racing in the mud in her Blazer. Most of all she loved working on cars, especially with her dad. Family and friends will always remember Amy for her passionate and caring heart. Throughout her lengthy illness she continued to care for the well-being of her loved ones, despite suffering herself. Amy possessed a fearless attitude which would not let her illness keep her from living a full life.

Survivors include her parents, Ken and Barb Johnson of Kearney; her grandmother, Violet Laue of Kearney; several aunts and uncles; several cousins; and countless friends.

Amy was preceded in death by her paternal grandparents, Cecil and Doris Johnson, and her maternal grandfather, John Laue, Jr.
