“ Where do I start? I have so many memories. I guess my most recent memory was when Cherrie came to my house for my birthday party in December. I had planned a girls trip for the weekend and it was a great time. I surprised Cherrie with a large gift full of Nightmare Before Christmas apparel and she was so happy and so surprised. I am thankful that we were able to spend that weekend together and celebrate my birthday in Omaha NE. I got to doll Cherrie up one last time with make up. We had a lot of fun and we had a lot of time to just sit and talk. That was the last time she and I were ever together for a full weekend and for those short few days it felt like she was cancer free and not sick anymore. She was in such good spirits and so excited. I am thankful for that time we had together. I love you Cherrie Berry. Forever & Always.
