“ We went to visit Uncle Cliff and Aunt Dorothy several years ago. Our children were quite younger at the time and as the visit progressed we found it easier for conversation purposes to relegate the children to the "bottom" layer of the house. Aunt Dorothy had prepared some marvelous dishes and has provided the recipes to my wife, Sherry, to which we enjoy the taste and the memory of "Dorothy's Kitchen" every now and then. But the one memory that always elicits a smile on my face, and I can still hear aunt Dorothy telling it and laughing through the whole story as she recounted it was this; With the children packed away and busy in the basement they would appear from time to time for snacks and refreshments. And of course the youngest of the pack, which would have been Jann, was delegated the task of retrieving the goods. Dorothy was such a wonderful host to us and it seemed she had anticipated our every need. Upon one such occasion, upon Jann's reaching the top of the stairs it seems as though Dorothy was already there and waiting with a bowl of beautiful dark grapes. As she handed Jann the bowl, i can still hear her soft loving voice....."here you go my dear".....As Jann turned to reenter to the lair once again he said the words that were forever etched on Dorothy's heart. He said, "Something sweet is coming down!" I can forever hear Dorothy's laugh of delight and I for one am deeply honored and blessed that God privileged me and my family to have both her and Uncle Cliff in our life's.
