“ Marjorie was one of the smartest, most interesting people I have known. She led an exciting life with her work (which she couldn't talk about) and with her many travels. She loved to tell about her trips to exotic locations, and I loved to hear about her adventures. Her detailed stories were a delight. Even when she was struggling with macular degeneration, she loved to be outside where she could enjoy all the bright colors and experience the wonder of nature. She was a life-long learner and was determined to keep her mind sharp. Marjorie was a unique lady.
