“ My grandpa Dick was a kind and loving man. And I don't think I have ever known a more patient or understanding person. Along with the importance of these amazing qualities, my grandpa also taught me some of my most valuable life lessons. One being, sometimes things are exactly what they are. A lesson easily learned with our first game of "52 card pick-up". Then reiterated by his explaining "a pound of feathers is equal to a pound of bricks". Another, "Don't dish it out, if you can't take it", a lesson that has helped me more times than I can count.

I know my grandpa Dick is in Heaven drinking a Pepsi right now, and he knows how much I love him, and how truly blessed I am to have him as a grandpa. And had I been given the chance, I would have been there to give my respects and tell him, "I'm here grandpa, I didn't hang up". ; )

“ Sorry to hear of Dick's passing. I knew Dick and worked with him at the Greeley Tribune.

Dick and Charlotte welcomed me into their home on many occasions when I first came to Greeley as a single man in 1964. We had a lot of fun at some of the parties they hosted along with the Frederiksens and other folks who worked that night shift at the Trib. He was always a hard worker and good friend. I'm sure you will miss him.
