“ Wanda was the oldest of 5 siblings in our family. As a child growing up, I remember her as something of a practical joker. She was always vibrant and ambitious. She was 14 years older than I and married when I was 5 yrs old, so I mostly remember her married on a nearby farm. Since our others siblings died first, we became closer to each other via phone calls and scattered visits. We loved going to her home. She was an excellent cook. She lived a long and full life, a pillar in our family. She will be sorely missed by all who knew her.
